

Qconcepts and VanLoman join forces for quality platform: independent specialists, shared vision

As of May 21, Qconcepts - Home of audit, and VanLoman - Trusted partner in tax, are joining forces in a strategic alliance. Both organizations will retain their independence and focus on services, but will operate with a shared vision focused on quality under the name Home of quality.

Shared vision, independent paths

Qconcepts and VanLoman were founded on the same core principles: specialization, craftsmanship and a strong focus on quality. That shared mindset is the foundation of this alliance. The platform will guide their joint ambitions in areas like growth, quality and international visibility. For professionals at both firms, daily work will continue as usual.

“What connects us is how we view our profession,” says Cor Pijnenburg, partner and co-founder at Qconcepts. “We each operate in our own domain, but recognize in each other the same sharpness, independence and drive to put quality first.” Laurens Lor, partner at VanLoman, adds: “This is a strategic step, not an organizational change. We remain autonomous, but show together what we stand for and can benefit from each other's expertise.”

Standing strong in a complex playing field

Both firms recognize today's challenges: changing regulations, growing customer expectations and the need to remain attractive to top talent. This alliance strengthens their position – not through integration, but by strategically standing side by side.

In the coming months, Qconcepts and VanLoman will further shape the platform. This marks a new chapter: two independent specialists, joining forces with a shared vision for the future.
